"We are what we repeatedly do. Excellence, then, is not an act, but a habit." – Will Durant

Oakland, California – The past year has seen producer, singer, songwriter, multi-instrumentalist, and music director, Chuckii Booker, under the spotlight at center stage. He made his comeback debut on September 11, 2022, at the legendary venue, Yoshi's in Oakland. Promptly selling out in record time. In the lobby, friends and newcomers alike greeted each other with the buzz of the ensuing show. With the show moments away, the anticipation of seeing one of R&B's beloved sons taking the stage was the talk not just around town, but around the world.

The ambiance at Yoshi's provides a warm and inviting backdrop to those who walk through its doors. The intimate setting and dynamic sounds lend one's senses to a world enraptured with music. As Chuckii and Uniiversty 2.0 begin, the crowd is charged with expectation on the brink of eruption. No one is surprised when the crowd bursts with unbelievable joy as soon as the first note is played. They had been waiting for this for a very long time. Chuckii and Uniiversty 2.0 do not disappoint.

Brought on a nostalgic ride, the audience is entertained throughout. The song requests gave fans a chance to create a rapport with not just each other, but the artist himself. They sang along and vibed to the music. Then the remix happened. Caught by surprise a silence incurred. But only for a moment. Then came the outburst of applause. To try to describe it will fall short. One must experience it.

Rock & Brews in Sacramento, California was the next stop. Just like the show before, the show sold out. It was the biggest crowd they had ever had. Employees scrambling to find extra chairs. Like Yoshi's, both venues had lines around the building.

Returning to his hometown where he hails from, The Miracle Theater in Los Angeles was a special treat for Chuckii. As did the shows before, the makeup of the audience was of international spectators, local patrons, celebrities, fans from all over the world, but most notably his family and friends he grew up with.

Even by the highest of standards, those who had the opportunity to bear witness can suffice to say, like fine wine, it is evident he truly gets better with time. The multi encore applause proved it so. As do the unrelenting requests for more shows from nearby and abroad.

The requests for more shows have not gone unheard. Back by popular demand, Yoshi's will once again play host to An Evening with Chuckii Booker and Uniiversty 2.0 on April 10, 2024. Also, be on the lookout for his "Unsung" story on TVOne, March 17, 2024.

It would be safe to say that no one could deny Chuckii Booker existence in the realm of excellence. Nor would those said people mind him taking to the spotlight once again. A very welcome habit indeed!
